

7. Open Space, Parks, and Recreation Element

Parks and recreation provide many benefits to a community and its citizens, including economic, health, environmental, social, and overall quality of life. Similarly, open spaces are important recreational, natural resource, and cultural assets that provide wildlife habitat, wilderness protection, groundwater retention, active recreational uses, historic landscapes, and visual corridors. The Open Space, Parks, and Recreation includes goals, policies, and programs addressing open space, parks, recreation facilities, and access conditions in Pleasant Hill.

The Open Space, Parks, and Recreation Element is divided into the following sections:

7.2 Parks and Recreation

The Recreation and Park District of Pleasant Hill (PHRPD), a Special District that operates as an independent government agency, provides and manages parks, facilities, open space, and recreation programs and events throughout the Pleasant Hill community. The PHRPD serves an area about 20 percent larger than the city of Pleasant Hill. Within the city, Pleasant Hill has approximately 180 acres of parkland that offer playgrounds, sports fields, and barbecue and picnic areas for adults and children alike. Several of the parks located in Pleasant Hill as described below also include a diverse range of other amenities including dog parks, historical identifiers, and hiking and biking trails. The following are public parks in Pleasant Hill (Figure OSP-1):

- Pleasant Hill Park and Pleasant Oaks Park host sports games with picnic areas and playgrounds.
- Brookwood Park and Rodgers-Smith Park have barbecue grills and other recreational amenities.
- Paso Nogal is an open space area with a 2.5-acre public dog park with 63 acres of hiking trails.
- Dinosaur Hill Park and Shannon Hills Park are maintained open parks with walking paths and trails providing a scenic outdoor setting.
- Sherman Acres Park is a small neighborhood park for pre-school-aged children with a playground and picnic facilities. Shadowood Park and Chilpancingo Park are each 2.5-acre passive turf areas. Shadowood Park has a playground and basketball hoop.
- Rodgers Ranch Heritage Center is a historic site just over two acres in size. The Rodgers farmhouse is the oldest house in Pleasant Hill, built around 1867 and expanded in the early 1900s. The site includes an urban farm that serves as an education center, hosting workshops and events including farm-to-table culinary courses, gardening, and permaculture. The Heritage Center also offers a summer day camp, hosts field trips and a harvest festival, and provides tours to the public.

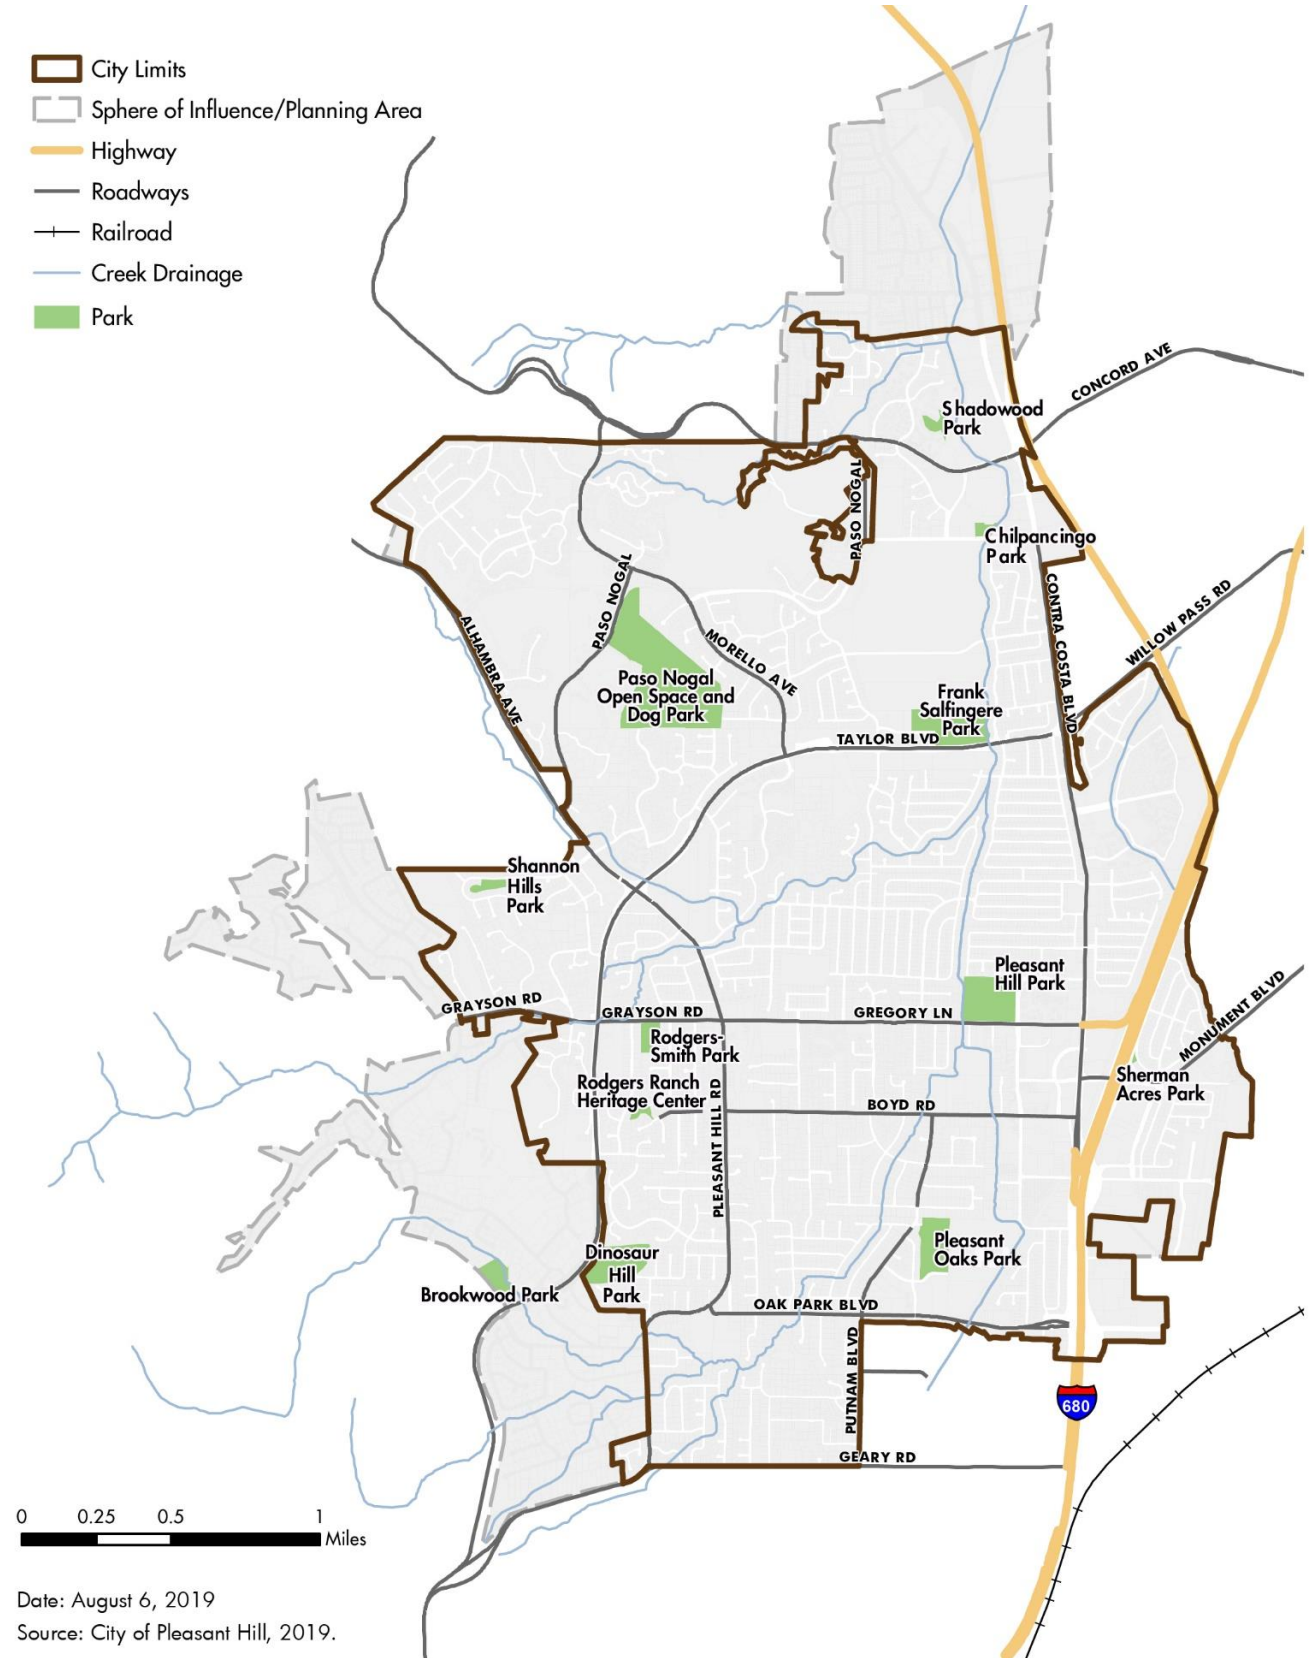

The PHRPD also has programs to serve all ages and interests. Separated by age groups, programs range from sports leagues and aquatics programs, to urban farming classes. Residents of all ages can explore their passion for theatre or learn computer skills or coding at any of the six community centers. Children as young as two-and-a-half years old can begin attending community programs or participate in preschool offered by the Recreation and Park District. For children three to five years of age, additional recreational opportunities are provided including swim lessons, sports, theater, and daytime summer camps.

Teens can enroll in enhanced recreation activities including summer camps, sports leagues and enrichment classes focusing on performing arts and computer coding. The Aquatics Center also offers teens the opportunity to participate in water sports, fitness classes, lifeguard training, and a swim team. The local Teen Council has teen representatives directly involved in community recreation programs, allowing them to plan activities, classes, sports, and trips for students grade six through college. There are numerous opportunities for adults and seniors, including advanced art classes, dance, fitness activities, sports leagues, daytrips and excursions, and even international travel tours to Tuscany, Vietnam, and Egypt. Adult enrichment classes are also offered in creative writing, retirement planning, computer skills, and wine tasting. In an effort to provide the best range of courses, the Pleasant Hill Recreation and Park District has partnered with Ed2Go to offer a wide variety of courses in topics such as finance, computer skills, college prep, and personal development.
